Otoacoustic Emissions: Basic Science for Clinical Applications (Singular Audiology Text) Charles I Berlin

Dedicated to Dr. David Kemp who in 1996, was chosen for his essential research and discovery of otoacoustic emissions, this outstanding third book in the Kresge-Mirmelstein award series is a true celebration of scholarship. The highlight of the book is Dr. Kemp's definitive chapter, Distorted Echoes of the Cochlea's Traveling Wave. Original, informative, and comprehensive, this chapter provides a wealth of information and a unique historical perspective on the subject. Accompanied by a CD-ROM, and featuring contributions from international and leading experts in the field, this volume is an invaluable source of essential information never before published.
